President's Message September, 2010

The months of May, June and July have hosted a number of STCNE events. Memorial Day weekend, an extraordinarily successful TCC (Transitional Cell Carcinoma) bladder cancer screening clinic was hosted by STCNE. TCC is the leading cause of cancer deaths in Scottish Terriers (STCA Health Trust Survey, 2005). Barbara Ljunggren and John and Joyce McNabney worked tirelessly in the co-ordination and organization of this health clinic. Dr. Dean Cerf and his staff traveled from Ridgewood, NJ bringing three technical staff and two portable ultrasound units. The VBTA bladder cancer screening kits were donated to Dr. Cerf for this clinic and a complete urinalysis was performed for each dog. Dr. Cerf and his staff offered this free clinic to participants at no cost to our Club. About 75% of participants were Scotties, but this clinic was also open to some other high risk breeds (Westies, Shelties and Beagles). Please read the article reprinted with permission of authors Barbara Ljunggren and John McNabney that was featured in the most recent issue of the Scottish Terrier Club of America Bagpiper quarterly magazine.

Our Annual Specialty was held June 4. Emily Okun participated in her last Specialty as a Junior competitor. For those that have followed Emily's Junior career, the Specialty Junior Showmanship and Conformation Classes ring bore the fruition of faith in Emily's abilities and talent. This year, Ch. Lomondview Clementina was the third Scottie owned by Daphne and John Eggert to be awarded Best of Breed at the SCTNE Specialty. The Eggerts have obtained permanent possession to retire the Blueberry Hill Challenge Trophy. Congratulations! A more detailed Specialty article, Conformation Judge comments and results are included in this newsletter.

The STCNE General Membership meeting and luncheon was held at Silver City Dog Training in Taunton, MA June 19. Members Margaret Blaine (Chair), Ray Dubreuil, Kathryn Foley, Lisa Gomes, John Leith were nominated and voted as members of this years Nominating Committee. Mary Dias and Betty McElrath were selected as alternates. The General Membership meeting was followed by a Foster Training Seminar presented by Board member, Rescue Co-Chair and Professional Trainer Steve Croteau. John and Joyce McNabney hosted a number of fun events for Scotties which then culminated in a costume contest.

On a more serious note, the June Board of Directors meeting approved the hiring of a CPA to file taxes for STCNE for the past three years. We have been given a considerable discount for these services (about two hundred fifty dollars cost per year!). Mandatory filing to the IRS commenced for the tax year November. 1, 2006 through October 31, 2007. This law requires all Clubs including those with gross income less than Twenty five thousand dollars per year to file. These tax returns have been recently filed with the IRS in order to bring STCNE into compliance with the new law.

In addition, IRS records show STCNE has been a 501 C-7 Tax exempt Club since 1945. A status of C-7 is for social Clubs and Associations and does not provide for donations to be tax deductible. We will be moving forward toward obtaining a C-3 or C-4 status once STCNE's suspended tax exempt status is rectified by the filing of the aforementioned tax returns.

The STCNE Earthdog Trials will be held in Harwinton, CT Sunday, October 17 at John and Joyce McNabney's. Volunteers are needed and welcome to assist with this event. Finally, please reserve Sunday November 14 on your calendar for the STCNE Annual Awards Banquet at the Publick House, Sturbridge, MA. as we culminate the Club year, celebrate our Scotties and enjoy an afternoon of camaraderie. Hope to see you soon.

#162 CASSIDY

by: Charlie Stevens Scottie Tails Editor in Chief

The morning of May second seemed no different than any other, dogs to be gotten out, back in, fed and back out to the run for exercise etc. we all have our own version of the Scottie owners ballet. What changed this particular morning and set it apart was the following email that had been forwarded to me by my club rescue coordinator.

"#162 Cassidy is an older Scottie terrier mix who was apparently owned by an irresponsible owner who never tended to his needs. Poor Cassidy only has until 5/4 at the shelter and then he will be put to sleep. We know the chances of someone stepping up to adopt or even help him are not likely but we want to at least try. Poor Cassidy is still vocal and spunky but is in poor shape. He needs to be groomed asap as he is losing some hair and more importantly, has to go to a vet to have a lump evaluated and removed. The lump may either be a cyst or some type of abscess. It's sad that someone owned him and then abandoned him in an unfamiliar kill shelter to die. We really hope he has an angel out there who can help him so he can live out the remaining years of his life. He would do best in a home without young children or highly active dogs. If you can adopt him or even help him to get treatment, ASAP!! He has only a few days left:(May 02, 2010)

"Hi Barb, This old boy is in a kill shelter. He is listed as a mix., and is about to be euthanized. Would you know of anyone who could give him a home in his senior years? Thanks" May 03, 2010.

I contacted Barbara and said that I would at least get him out of the shelter, get him seen and find out just how bad his condition was and what, if anything, could be done for him. I inquired, of Barbara, how to reach the shelter officer to inform him that I would be down the next day to claim the dog and find out what fees were involved. Barbara reminded me that we had a rescue committee member who lived near by and perhaps he would be willing to pick the dog up and hold him overnight and then meet me half way the next day. This was agreed to and the process was set in motion and Cassidy was retrieved from the shelter and taken to David's house for the afternoon and evening. David mentioned that the bump in the original email was about the size of a racquet ball and that Cassidy had a very strong odor about him.

David took Cassidy to be seen by a Vet and given a rabies shot and a somewhat clean bill of health before being transported from Connecticut to Massachusetts. Cassidy was seen and examined, given a one year rabies shot and a long term antibiotic to help his bad skin. He also received a mild sedative to help calm him and stop his constant barking. All things worked together for good and soon David and his somewhat more calm passenger were headed to Sturbridge and their rendezvous with me.

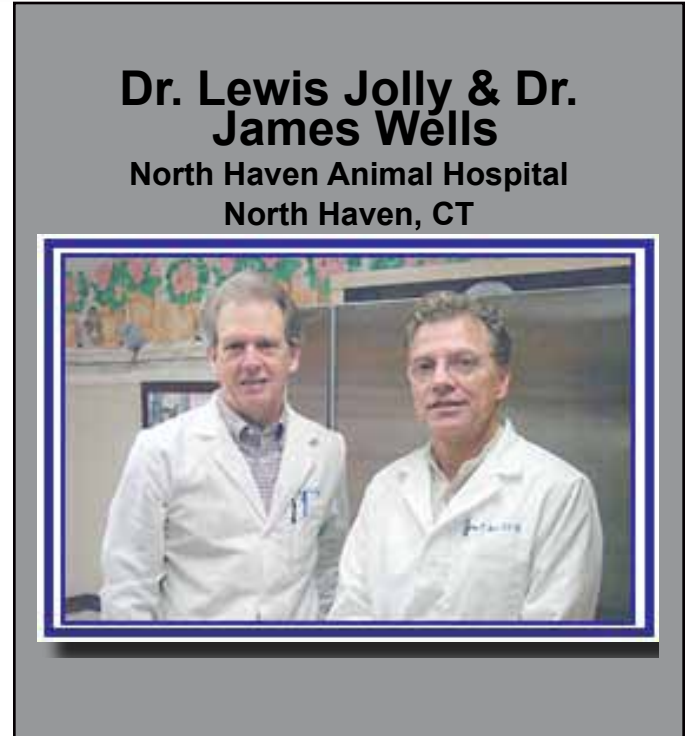

About 11:00 AM we all arrived in Sturbridge at the appointed location for the exchange. David removed Cassidy from the crate and slipped a kennel lead over his neck and walked over to me. What I saw was an old dog with a gray muzzle and 6 inch "dreadlocks" hanging from his ears. matted patches of short black hair and an upright tail that had its own "dangling chad". I removed the kennel lead from Cassidy and put him in a 6 foot slip lead and suggested that the three of us walk a bit and David could fill me in on what he knew about Cassidy before he and I headed off to Cape Cod. During our walk around the park David revealed to me that Cassidy was not his real name, that was forever lost. Cassidy was the name he was given by the workers at the kill shelter. David said that every time he had to pick him up or move him he growled threateningly, however never acted on the growls. As I was driving back to the cape with the smell filling the vehicle it began to take on an air of familiarity, suddenly it dawned on me. petroleum! This dog has either been sleeping in an auto body shop, painter's warehouse, auto salvage yard, or some such place where all he had to sleep on were old or oily rags. That would explain the skin condition and the smell at the same time.

Upon arriving back at Yarmouth Port, I swung by my vet to see if I could make an appointment for my vet to see this guy at some point in the near future. My vet, Paul McCartin, DVM, asked me to come into an exam room and we talked about Cassidy for a few minutes. Paul asked if I had him with me and I told him I did. He suggested that I bring him in so he could have a look at him. I went to the car to retrieve Cassidy and got the required growl, all the while his tail was wagging. I took Cassidy into the exam room and got another growl when I put him on the examination table, again with the same wagging tail. Paul introduced me to a new person who had joined Paul and I in the room. He said that she was Amy Corbasaro, a new vet that the clinic had recently hired. Paul stated that Dr. Corbasaro would be looking after Cassidy for his intake assessment. Paul then looked at me and said, "Is this your dog?" "No," I said and relayed the story of how Cassidy had come to STCNE rescue 5 hours before he was to be put down. Paul then made a statement after which I could have been knocked over with a feather. "If you are willing to do that for this old guy, and to put yourself at that kind of expense just because this guy needs it, I will make him my Pro Bono project and there will be no cost to you or STCNE." Paul chuckled and added "This does two things, It lets me do my Pro Bono and it gives me a chance to see just how good Dr. Corbasaro is. That was the moment at which Cassidy's life took a dramatic turn up. Cassidy was lead to the back towards the kennel area and Paul asked me to call during the next week to check on him.

Within a few hours of my leaving him, Cassidy had his first of two Dawn baths to remove the "gunk" and oil from his coat. In the days that followed Cassidy underwent a full battery of tests so that a true assessment of his health might be available to guide treatment for any chronic conditions, address acute matters and let a future adopter truly understand just what this old guy had brought to the table. In the weeks that followed Cassidy underwent a complete battery of tests including, a complete blood panel, an ultrasound and x-ray scan of the bump, which proved to be a precancerous testicular adenoma. This was removed as soon as Cassidy was stable enough for the procedure. Cassidy also received an electro cardiogram, which revealed a small non life threatening heart murmur, also complete dental and eye exams, the eye exam revealed the beginning of cataracts. The dental exam revealed worn but sound teeth with surprisingly, no tartar build up. His physical exam revealed the presence of a small hernia, which Dr. McCartin felt did not need to be repaired do to Cassidy's overall health and age, estimated to be approximately nine years. Cassidy also received a series of medicated baths to improve the general condition of his skin, which had some issues, from sleeping on the oily rags for some length of time.

Cassidy's quick veterinarian's exam turned into a month at the Mayo clinic and an in kind service donation on the part of Dr. McCartin and Hyannis Animal Hospital of nearly $2,000.00 on Cassidy's behalf. Each time I called to say that I could come pick him up I was told that I should wait a couple more days. I later learned that the clinic's staff had rather taken a fancy to this old guy. Since coming home to my house Cassidy, now Casey, has learned that he is considered a valued member of his pack and is loved for who he is and that that is good enough. When his coat is fully filled in and he goes to his new forever home he can look forward to a long and happy life after his near brush with death. This old guy may have come to us with no information, but at this point his health is among the best documented of any dog on Cape Cod, maybe even in New England. Perhaps Ian Fleming was correct, You Only Live Twice.

STCNE Rescue would like to thank Dr. Jolly, Dr. Wells and their caring staff for their support and treatment of our rescue Scots.

They have gone above and beyond for our rescues, and us this year.

Their dedication and compassion for our rescue Scots has been a blessing to all.

The doctors and staff always seem to find the time for STCNE RESCUE in their busy practice. They have never let us down!

We would like to honor and thank them with this award from all the wee ones at STCNE RESCUE.

Fala Gala Report

Dear STCNE Members, family and friends:

On May 22nd I traveled to Rhinebeck, New York for the Fala Gala. Fala's Gala was held at Wilderstein, a 35 room Queen Anne Mansion.

Wilderstein was the home of Margaret Daisy Suckley (FDR's cousin) overlooking the Hudson River. Wilderstein's biannual event celebrating Fala was a great opportunity and experience. The day featured a pooch parade, Fala look alike contest, short bread contest, bagpipes, snack bar (hot dogs of course), Scotch tasting and more.

I had great time representing STCNE Rescue and talking to many about our rescue program. Admission to the event was $25 per dog and people were free. I like to thank Gregory T. Solaris and his wonderful staff for the invitation, warm welcome, and fun day.

I also met up with a group of STCNE members, one of which was Terry McElrath who was interviewed by the local television station. Terry made it known to the viewing audience that he was a proud member of STCNE.

Rhinebeck has many B & B's, hotels, and nearby home of the famous Culinary Institute of America (where you may dine with RSVP or no reservations in their café). There are many glorious mansions to tour including, the Vanderbilt Mansion, John Jacob Astor's (Titanic passenger) mansion.

Hyde Park home of FDR is just down the road with the presidential library and museum. Franklin and Eleanor along with Fala are interred in the beautiful rose garden.

As I stood outside outside the museum with my rescue Duncan looking in the employees and rangers surprised me and waved us in and asked to take pictures. One elderly gentlemen who had worked there for many years exclaimed, "Fala's done come home!"

Thanks to all and hope to see you at the next Fala Gala in 2012.

STCNE Bladder Cancer Screening Clinic

By Barbara Ljunggren and John McNabney

On Saturday, May 29, 2010, STCNE hosted a Bladder Cancer Screening Clinic at Paws N'Effects in Hamden, CT. Dr. Dean J. Cerf of the Ridgewood Veterinary Hospital, Ridgewood, NJ, and his technical team screened Scotties, Westies, Shelties, and Beagles using portable ultrasound, urinalysis and a VBTA test (an antibody test) also using urine. Dr. Cerf and his staff are conducting clinics to test the efficacy of a protocol for early detection of transitional cell carcinoma (TCC, or bladder Cancer) being developed by Dr. Cerf. Taken together, these tests reveal the health of the bladder, including the presence of bladder cancer (also known as TCC or transitional cell carcinoma) in the very early stages of development. The ultrasound survey of the bladder is used to confirm the results of the urinalysis and the VBTA tests. With sufficient data to confirm the predictive validity of these procedures, a relatively inexpensive, highly accurate protocol will hopefully be available to veterinarians to test for bladder cancer in the near future. Early detection of TCC is the key to effective treatment. This clinic made history, as it was the most successful and best attended clinic (63 total dogs with 47 Scottish Terriers) since Dr. Cerf started his TCC clinics! As bladder cancer occurs with the highest frequency of all cancers in Scotties and is the leading cause of cancer deaths in Scottish Terriers (STCA Health Survey, 2005), this clinic was vital to early identification of Scotties with bladder cancer, and to the therapeutic treatment of bladder cancer.

In regard to the therapy of existing bladder cancer, Dr Cerf also presented a video of a surgical procedure he recently presented to the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine (ACVIM, considered one of the most prestigious veterinary groups). This procedure uses a very small endoscope and an attached carbon dioxide laser surgical device to remove tumor from the bladder (video available at <http://deanjcerfdvm.mediashare.com>).

The laser/endoscope is first inserted through the urethra into the bladder, guided by the surgeon using the image from the endoscope and an ultrasound to determine the topographic relationship between the laser and the tumor. Once properly located, the laser incinerates the gross tumor in small increments until the bladder wall is reached. The laser treatment can be done regardless of the location of the tumor and is most effective when the tumor is located in the trigone area of the bladder (where the urethra enters and into which the kidneys empty through ureters) and in the urethra, areas where tumors cannot be removed by surgical procedures. By removing the visible tumor, the prognosis for quality life for the dog is greatly enhanced and average survival time is significantly extended. Also, as microscopic cancer is still present, the procedure, when used in combination with chemotherapy, may lead to complete remission. When the tumor is aggressive and recurs, repeat laser treatments may keep the tumor under control to the point where the dogs frequently die from other, unrelated health issues. Stents may also be used to keep the urethra open and allow passage of urine.

A plaque on Dr. Cerf's office door states:

"The Best Thing about Miracles is that they Happen"

While the surgical technique developed by Dr. Cerf is labor intensive and may take several hours of surgery, it offers an often effective and additional treatment modality in combination with traditional chemotherapy (i.e., piroxicam) for Bladder Cancer in dogs.

Several participants from this Clinic were notified of abnormal urinalysis/ultrasound results. Duncan Ljunggren (an adopted rescue scot) screening results were abnormal and follow-up testing with his local veterinarian to date has been inconclusive, but hopeful.

Thank you to Dr. Dean Cerf and his veterinary team and the many STCNE members and participants who attended this clinic with their dogs on a busy holiday weekend.

Speciality Critique

June 10, 2010

Dear Members of the STCNE,

Thank you so much for the opportunity to judge the STCNE Specialty show. It was an honor and a pleasure, and will remain a fond memory for many years to come. Mother Nature blessed us a sunny day. However the temperature and humidity proved exhausting for humans and dogs alike..

My entry overall was quite nice. In the classes I felt dogs were stronger than bitches. My Winners dog and Reserve dog were both lovely type, and strong movers. Most dogs were in top condition with good attitudes. Coats for the most part were dense.

The toughest decision of the day was in awarding Best of Breed. While there were many good champions, two in particular stood out. My eventual Best of Breed was a bitch of superb type: correct size for a bitch, lovely ears, keen expression, and balanced proportions. On the day she showed extremely well. I also loved the dog I awarded Best of Opposite Sex, who was in fabulous condition. He is a VERY strong mover with a lovely front, and I am confident that he will prove himself as a stud dog. Unfortunately the heat and humidity seemed to get to him at the end.

Thank you again to all who exhibited, the show committee, and most of all—The Dogs!

Most sincerely,

Rosalind L. Kramer

Charlie Stevens, Scottie Tails Editor in Chief

As some of you know by now I have been asked to be the editor for Scottie Tails, I am honored by this and will, with my excellent staff, endeavor to continue to bring to the membership of the Scottish Terrier Club of New England accurate and timely information regarding the state of our beloved breed as well as what is going on with our club and in the life of the Scottie community overall.

I will take just a moment to highlight one or two items which I feel are very worthy of mention in a very public form. Our club held their annual specialty on June 4th. at the Cracker Barrel Fairgrounds in Wrentham, MA. We had a very nice field of 28 Scotties for Judge Rosalind Kraus Kramer and 9 excellent puppies for Breeder Judge William "Bill" Berry to review in Sweepstakes. This show was followed by an excellent meal of fresh lobster rolls and other traditional New England "goodies", all provided through the generosity of our club members. During the day a silent auction was held which raised over $700.00 dollars for STCNE Rescue.

Thank you to all who provided items and an even bigger Thank You to all those who so generously supported this worthwhile cause in a difficult economy.

The second item I would like to mention is the STCNE annual Fall "B" Match. This was held on September 19 in Foster Rhode Island at the Little Rhody Vasa Park. There were over 50 Scotties and their people in attendance. A traditional Swedish meatball dinner was prepared and donated by Barbara and Paul Ljunggren. The fall match was held this year in conjunction with a silent auction which raised over $200.00 for STCNE Scottie Rescue. This year's event also featured a free microchip clinic as well as free OFA eye and Patella exams. sponsored by a grant from the STCA Health Trust Fund. with special reduced pricing on VetGen vWD test kits.

One last reminder anyone wishing to submit totals for any of the STCNE club awards must have all documentation to the President prior to close of business October 20, 2010. Do not forget to save the date November 14, 2010. Publick House in Sturbridge Massachusetts. Annual meeting, election of officers, silent and live auctions as well as Scottie oriented fun activities in the afternoon.

Well that's it for now, see you in the ring.

Very Special Thanks
